OUR WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27, 1912.
William Corcoran Eustis, chairman of the inaugural committee, is of distinguished lineage. He is a descendant of the Custis family, to which belonged Martha Custis, the wife of the first president of the United States. He is also a grand-son and heir of Mr. W. W. Corcoran, who presented Washington, city a medical school and the beautiful Corcoran Art Gallery. Mrs. Eustis, his wife, who will occupy a position of great social prominence during the inaugural ceremonies, is a daughter of the late Levi P. Morton, vice-president of the United States during Harrison's administration.

Active steps are being taken to arrange for an inaugural parade of women suffrage advocates from all over the country.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the testimony of J. Pierpont Morgan before the "money trust" investigation committee of the House of Representatives. He declared that no such thing as a money trust is possible; and that he did not believe all the banks in Christendom could corner the money market; that credit is more powerful in business dealings than actual wealth or money.

The effect of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, annuling the 65 per cent contracts of the railroads and anthracite coal companies, is more far reaching than was at first realized. This is seen from the set of questions, the most searching ever put to any railroad, asked by the Interstate Commerce Commission, in an investigation just started, which is but one step of the inquiry concerning the rates, practices, rules and regulations, of the rail-roads for the transportation of hard coal. The fact that 90 per cent of our canals and domestic water traffic is owned or controlled by the rail-roads has come as a surprise to most of us.

In the tariff hearing which will begin Jan. 6 an investigation will be made of the necessity for changes in the duty upon wool, flax, cotton, hemp, silk, tobacco, wines, wood and wood products, petals, sugar, chemicals, agricultural products and provisions, and many miscellaneous articles.

The Mexican situation, owing to the failure of President Madero to protect American citizens and property, has become acute. President Taft has sent an ultimatum to Madero, which is regarded by some as only a few steps short of a declaration of war. After the first of January, there will be no binding ties of commerce, navigation or immigration between this country and Russia. It will be remembered that President Taft, abrogated, last spring, the treaty of 1832 with Russia, because of Russia's treatment of the Jews. As agitation is dreaded in both countries the understanding here is that nothing will be done or said by either government to give ground for a protest, until a treaty defining the relations of the two countries can be agreed upon. In the usual course of diplomatic proceed-ure neither the Mexican nor Russian difficulties can be settled during the present administration. So, in addition to the domestic questions of trusts and tariff, the new administration will have to deal with the Mexican and Russian problems and also with the Panama tolls dispute.

Indeed Mr. Wilson's administration promises to be an eventful one.

Mr. Carnegie says that he will have an opportunity to make for himself an immortal name by inaugurating the judicial settlement of our international disputes; and, though himself a Republican, Mr. Carnegie promises his earnest support, and that of all peace lovers, without regard to party affiliations.

Poplar Grove
Christmas passed off quietly at this place. The Christmas tree proved a splendid success, being loaded with nice gifts for all. The tree was beautifully trimmed in various colored confetti and tiny candles, all combining to produce a brilliant effect. We wish to thank the young men from the surrounding neighborhood for their excellent behavior during the services. We fully appreciate the courtesy shown us, and extend to them an ever open welcome to Poplar Grove. There was scarcely a whisper heard in the audience during the distribution of presents.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sloan visited relatives in White county this week.
Mr. Jess Whitaker of White county is visiting his sister, Mrs. Braxton Rohannon.

The young child of Pleas Bohannon was badly burned Tuesday night, but hopes are entertained for its recovery.
Miss Belle Buckner was a pleasant caller at Hop Bohannon's Saturday.

Little Miss Pearl Huddleston spent Sunday night with Bessie Bohannon.

I will close with best wishes for a joyous, prosperous new year to the editor and all his readers. Two Friends.

Mt. View Lodge, No. 179, I. O. O. F., met at the usual hour Dec. 28, 1912, A.
N. Bowden, N. G., presiding. Quite a lot of routine business was disposed of.
Bro. R. F. Pippin was reported somewhat worse. Bros. Staley and Garrison as-about like last week. Bro. Joseph Wolf met the misfortune three weeks ago of getting his foot seriously hurt, but is getting along very well now.

The committee on hall furnishing reported progress. Not having received the carpet and matting bills they were unable to report the full amount of cost. The brothers expressed great admiration of the carpet and other furniture.

Resolutions were adopted by the lodge tendering sympathy and condolence to Bro. E. H. Boyd on account of the death of his father, Hon. A. W.
Boyd. Also to Bro. Geo. W. Cooper, Jr., on account of the death of his child.
Both resolutions were spread upon the minutes.

Bro. J. W. Brown's membership was transferred to Baxter Lodge.

Only one brother has been reinstated this term. If a member can't keep up he had better be dropped. Such members are (unintentionally) a detriment to the lodge, and no benefit to themselves fraternally.

Castlewood, Virginia

Dear Herald: I enclose 25c to renew my sub. before the year ends. As I wrote you once I am a Tennessean. This is my third year in this place, in the hills of old Virginia. I like here fine, but would like it better if I had a flying machine, for the roads here are terrible, especially in winter.

This is a bluegrass region. The principal crops are corn and wheat, while most every farmer raises sugar cane, pumpkins, broomcorn, Irish potatoes, a few sweet potatoes and many kinds of garden vegetables. Blackberries and strawberries grow wild in great quantities. The fruits are peaches, pears, plums, grapes and apples. Apples can be bought here now at 25c to 50c per bushel. I have some before me that measure 12 inches around.

The farming is all done on the cone-shaped hills—some too steep to plow, and are cultivated with hoes. Just room between the hills for the dwelling houses, a few outhouses, a garden, a branch and a road. Occasionally there is a house on a hill and a little field between the hills.

My husband is a Southern Methodist minister, and a member of Holston conference. We live in a nice parsonage by a new church and at the base of five hills. One of Mr. Perkins nine churches or preaching place gave us a big pumping the day before Thanksgiving, and the day before Christmas we had the pleasure of unpacking a box of Christmas presents from one church. On Christmas day at the parsonage I entertained my Sunday school class of 14 young men and young ladies. Among the things for dinner was a big turkey—I forgot to tell that almost everybody up here raises turkeys. One lady sold more than $90 worth, and some of her young turkeys weighed 25 pounds and she got 15c a pound. While within the past three months many droves of 100 or more cattle have passed the parsonage I saw one drove of 442 turkeys go by before Thanksgiving, and one-half a mile beyond here they were joined by a drove of about 400 more and driven on six miles to Castlewood, from which place they were shipped.

But I must go back to Christmas. The day after Christmas from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. I entertained 15 little girls and 15 little boys of a former Sunday school class I had invited. As they all stood around the table our hearts rejoiced and as we talked I said I was glad Jesus said "Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." As an assistant Sunday school superintendent I am doing my best to keep up a Sunday school all winter, but the old people, or many of them, are not very spiritual—more interested, it seems, in raising calves than children—and it's no small undertaking to attempt to keep up a Sunday school. If it were not for the fact that "the eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms" to cheer us on I am sure many besides myself would long since have fallen by the wayside, under discouragement. But praise the Lord, all God's promises are true.

How I do enjoy reading the letters in the Herald. I am personally acquainted with some of the correspondents and know many of the Herald readers. Why don't more people write now that the paper is enlarged?

Why don't W. W. W. of New Mexico write oftener? What has become of Johnson Wassom of Texas? How is your mother, Mr. Wassom? Ask her if she has forgotten her visit to Crab Orchard, where she visited when the old widower called?

What has become of little Jeff Robinson, who married Lula Baker? Where are Edna, Effie and Ethel Cook, who used to live at Hillham? Girls, write to me again. Miss Nora Matheny, where you and your father's family?

Why do not people sign their own names to their letters so that we may know each other? Let us do that after New Years. I shall not sign my name as I did the other time, "A Preacher's Wife," but my right name, so people who know me will know that I am still among the living, an old maid no longer but a happy preacher's wife.

Mattie Baker Perkins.

Granville
I preached at the Forks of Flynn's Creek today. I married W. M. Platt and Lula Jackson at the home of J. C. Platt.

I preached a funeral of John Summitt's little girl, Pink Richards, a child and John Wheeler's daughter. Pray for me and that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified. In the one hope of eternal life, your brother, W. G. Wilson.
